

Ken Horwitz was recently named as an Honorary Fellow of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants for his outstanding leadership in TSCPA and the accounting profession for a number of years. Ken received his Texas CPA license in 1978 and has given countless hours to that profession since that time. He practiced taxation as a CPA for many years and was a Partner with Coopers & Lybrand until 1989; since that time he has practiced as an attorney and has actively practiced law in the capacity as Of Counsel with GPM since 1999. He has served on both the TSCPA and Dallas Chapter boards of directors and in a variety of volunteer committee roles for the TSCPA and its Dallas Chapter as well as the AICPA; he has authored articles and given lectures on accounting, accounting and tax ethical, and tax issues for many years. He has shown commitment to his professions (both as a CPA and a lawyer) through his involvement in TSCPA and other professional communities.
